

Outstanding Performance by a Male Actor in a Television Movie or Limited Series

MICHAEL KEATON: Thank you very much. Sorry. Quick trip to the men's room. It's packed, by the way.

This is so nice. Thank you very much, really. I'm truly -- I'm so grateful. You know what, there's an argument to be made. It's a legitimate argument -- look how nice everyone looks -- that -- a night like tonight is self-serving, narcissistic. Yup. It's a legitimate argument to be made.

That said, I will tell you -- and I'll speak for myself -- I am so fortunate. I mean, we could spend a week here talking about how fortunate I am, and I know you'd all love that. Yeah. Who wants to hear Mike ramble on for a couple hours? But I'm so blessed to do what I do and so fortunate, and I'm only going to speak for myself.

I have a job where I can be part of a production like Dopesick or Worth -- thank you -- or whatever that actually can spawn thought, conversation, actual change. Who gets to have that job? Seriously, how fortunate am I that good can come from something that I do just because I wanted to become an actor?

There's massive inequity in the world. In Dopesick, when you talk about addiction, the way to heal the problem is to accept that you have a problem. Not our country, the entire world. Economically, racially, socially, financially, there's massive inequity in the world. There just is. There's fair, and there's unfair. There's not a lot of room in between.

I can feel right now the rolling thunder of eye rolling coming across, people saying to me things like, "Shut up and dribble. Shut up and act."

The acting, I'll quit. The shutting up, not so much. I am blessed to be able to do something that might improve someone's life. I'm the most fortunate person. I swear to God I'm so grateful for things like this. This is nice. I will tell you we have a fellow actor in Zelenskyy, who deserves some credit tonight for fighting the fight. I've sent out my preemptive thanks to everyone involved in this, especially Marney.

But mostly, given the subject matter, this is for my nephew Michael and my sister Pam. I lost Michael -- I lost my nephew Michael to drugs, and it hurts. This is for my sister Pam.

Thanks.
